After the first volume was published in 2009 under the title Jean-Yves Barrier. Architect and Urbanist / Architecte et Urbaniste, which documented 25 years of his architectural practice, this second volume is dedicated to architectural and artistic projects since the mid-2000s. While the first volume focused on architectural and urbanistic projects, this second volume presents not only 25 new architectural projects of Barrier, but also a completely different facet of his work: the relationship between architecture and art. In this context, »folding« becomes a fundamental concept that can be applied from design objects to art installations in public spaces and architecture.

This new volume also shows once again the astonishing variety of architectural typologies that Barrier deals with in his current oeuvre. Whether it concerns residential buildings, collective housing, public facilities, urban design or functional buildings (such as supermarkets, an employment office or an engineering structure), Barrier never adopts a repetitive or doctrinaire attitude, but develops new solutions for each project, which can be found in his ideal »lexicon of constants«. This is particularly true for the permanent search for urban coherence for the most varied interventions: in city centres, in derelict industrial zones or in diffuse peri-urban spaces. Contemporary garden cities, condensed and compact assemblies, collages or the interweaving with what exists represent possibilities for Barrier to requalify and redevelop forgotten or abandoned urban situations with contemporary architecture. This is accompanied by the search to create urban signs and new networks in urban space, with the attempt to perpetuate the existing layers of the city.

But it is not only the city that serves him as an architectural projection screen, but also and in particular the manifold interplay between art, design and architecture, which is expressed in a specific method, an edifice of thoughts, which allows him to achieve a creative coherence on these various levels of scale and thus simultaneously connects different disciplines with each other.

Elke Mittmann is an art historian. She studied at the Universities Paris-IV-Sorbonne and Leipzig and holds a doctorate. After working for many years at the Stiftung Bauhaus Dessau, she has been director of the Maison de l'architecture Centre – Val de Loire in Orléans since 2011 and is currently teaching at the Ecole nationale supérieure d'architecture de Strasbourg.

Erdmut Bramke, Werkverzeichnis. Bd. 3: Kunst am Bau

Edited by the Freunde der Staatsgalerie Stuttgart e.V. 128 pp. with 110 illus., 220 x 280 mm, hard-cover, German
 ISBN 978-3-86905-032-4
 Euro 49.00, £ 39.90, US$ 53.00

The third volume of Erdmut Bramke's catalogue raisonné is devoted to art on buildings and other works in public space. It complements the two volumes already published with the presentation of paintings and works on paper. This makes the artist's work accessible to the public in its entirety. The richly illustrated catalogue presents the artist's competition entries from 1974 to 2002 in chronological order. The presentation of more than 20 realised and unrealised works on the basis of previously largely unpublished material and personal notes from the artist's estate provide an insight into her working methods and thus also allow a detailed look at the process of creating the works. Both the sketches and drafts and the executed works show an incredible joy in experimentation and variability in the use of materials, ranging from painted metal sheets, drillings in wood and stone to tiles, fabrics, canvas, graffiti and glass to paving stones. In keeping with her motto »colour has me«, which she borrowed from Paul Klee, she seeks to evoke intense colour experiences as well as quiet, contemplative moments in the viewer.

Characteristic of Bramke's interventions is her sensitive approach to the circumstances, which does not see itself as an ingredient, but rather aims to enter into a synthesis with them to their mutual advantage. The »Bramke system« already manifests itself with the early, expansive work for the University of Constance. The form-giving element is a variable order structure. The arrangement of the same elements with slight changes and nuances, but which proceed in rows according to the same laws, condense into a structure and become a vibrating lineament. Even 50 years after its completion, the work is considered a successful example of how art in building can have integrative and functional qualities without losing its artistic value.

Susanne Grötz, born in 1961 in Koblenz, studied art history and German and Italian literature in Marburg and Pisa. She has been working on the estate of Erdmut Bramke for many years. The author lives and works in Stuttgart and Italy as a freelance exhibition curator and tour guide.

Jan Kaplický – For the Future and For Beauty

376 pp. with 520 illus. including 420 in colour, 250 x 280 mm, hard-cover, English
 ISBN 978-3-86905-025-6
 Euro 78.00, £ 68.00, US$ 89.00

This is the first monograph on the life and work of the Czech born British architect Kaplický (1937–2009). It is a fully comprehensive work based on a decade of research and is a distinctive portrait of one of the most distinguished architects and designers of the 20th and 21st centuries. At the same time it is an exploration into historical events, which influenced a number of talented artists, writers and designers, some of whom were forced, like Kaplický, to emigrate from Czechoslovakia in order to expand their skills and search for beauty through living in freedom in democratic countries. After immigrating to the United Kingdom in 1968, Kaplický applied his imagination and diligence and enhanced his skills and aptitude, gaining admiration and respect following the cofounding of the innovative Future Systems studio in 1979. With his wide-ranging architectural and design oeuvre Kaplický affirmed greatness of his immense talent and ability.

The author was a friend, through their shared émigré life experience, giving him broad insight into the inception and realisation of this book. He searched family archives and referenced Kaplický's private diaries. The author drew on everybody who had something important to say and gathered written memories and interviews from Kaplický's friends, colleagues, partners and clients, which form the cornerstone of the monograph. His aim was to write a book that would mirror Kaplický's life and work, a representation made up not only from the author's own point of view, but also according to others with whom Kaplický had been in contact during his life.

The book has many voices and has a kaleidoscopic format, which truly explores Kaplický's complex personality and his creativity. It does not overwhelm with excessive information, but builds a picture of the man behind his designs and tells his story. The author presents Kaplický's personal side with sensitivity and explains his dramatic decision-making.

Ivan Margolius was born in Prague, studied architecture there, which he completed in London after leaving Czechoslovakia in 1966. As an architect he worked with Yorke Rosenberg Mardall, SOM and Foster + Partners. He published books and articles on art, architecture, engineering, design and automobile history. He collaborated with Future Systems on several projects and with Jan Kaplický coauthored Czech Inspiration – Česká Inspirace (Prague, 2005).

Gardens for the Senses – The Spanish Gardens of Javier Mariátegui

With texts by Javier Mariátegui Valdés and photographs by Javier Mariátegui Valdés, Casilda Mariátegui and Mark Bentley. 188 pp. with 245 illus., 305 x 259 mm, hard-cover, English ISBN 978-3-936681-98-7 Euro 58.00, £ 42.90, US$ 64.00

It was not by chance nor by a trick of fate that Javier Mariátegui dedicated himself to gardening. He grew up among gardens.

Both his grandmothers were gardening enthusiasts, one of them, the Marchioness of Casa Valdés, wrote the book Spanish Gardens, which describes the history of Spanish gardening from Roman times to the present day. This book continues to be a reference for all lovers of this particular field of history and art.

This enthusiasm was passed on to him by his parents. From his earliest years he was making his own gardens, by reusing those plants discarded by his father.

Mariátegui studied landscape gardening and design at the Escuela de Paisajismo y Jardinería Castillo de Batres in Madrid. Subsequently he worked in England as a gardener. Back in Spain, he established the Jardines de España nursery, which looks after and employs handicapped children, with whom he first started making gardens. For the past thirty years, he has created numerous gardens across Spain and in several other European countries. He has also published many articles on landscape-gardening topics in specialised magazines and a book on one of his gardens: El Jardín de los Tapices / The Tapestry Garden. Among the present garden architects of Spain Mariátegui plays an outstanding role. Even the Spanish TV has dedicated a monographic program to him and his gardens.

It would be difficult to summarize in a few words the essence of Mariátegui's gardens, given the wide variety of styles, their versatility and numerous differences that perhaps becomes his »signature«. His style is not dogmatic, he loves order and disorder, straight lines and curved, the wild chaos of nature as well as strict geometrical patterns, varied and single species of plants, colour and absence of colour. Moreover he enjoys bringing elements that clash together until they harmonize.

Perhaps as a result of an intimate knowledge of the magic of water in Andalusian Moorish gardens, Mariátegui uses water as an essential element in many of his gardens. He makes it »work« in all its forms; in pumps, in cascades, in constant gentle movement, or rocking in waves, in disperse drops or in silence like a mirror that adds the magic of its reflection.

Frei Otto / Bodo Rasch. Finding Form – Towards an Architecture of the Minimal

240 pp. with 540 illus. in b & w and colour, 215 x 240 mm, hard-cover, English ISBN 978-3-930698-66-0 Euro 49.00, £ 39.90, US$ 59.00

»Primeval architecture is an architecture of necessity. Nothing is there to excess, no matter whether stone, clay, reeds or wood, animal skins or hair are used. It is minimal. It can be very beautiful even amidst poverty and is good in the ethical sense.

Good architecture seems to be more important than beautiful architecture. Beautiful architecture is not necessarily good. Only buildings that are at the same time ethically good and aesthetically beautiful are worth preserving.

We have too many buildings that have become useless and yet we still need new buildings, from pole to pole, in the cold and in the heat.

Man's present areas of settlement are the new ecological system in which technology is indispensable, even in hot and cold areas. ...

Our age requires buildings that are lighter, more energy-saving, more mobile and more adaptable, in brief more natural, without disregarding the need for safety and security.

This logically leads to the further development of light constructions, to the building of tents, shells, awnings and air-supported membranes. It also leads to a new mobility and changeability. A new understanding of nature is forming under one aspect of high performance form (also called »classical form«), which unites aesthetic and ethical viewpoints.

Tomorrow's architecture will again be minimal architecture, an architecture of the self-education and self-optimization processes suggested by human beings.«

(Frei Otto and Bodo Rasch in their foreword of this book.)

In 1992 the Bavarian branch of the Deutscher Werkbund awarded its first prize to Frei Otto, undoubtedly the most successful and many-sided protagonist of modern light construction, and with it a request to nominate a meritorious person to whom the prize could be passed on and to design a joint exhibition with that person. Frei Otto chose his pupil Bodo Rasch, who had realised Otto's theories particularly in other cultures.

Otto died on 9 March 2015; he was to be publicly announced as the winner of the 2015 Pritzker Prize on 23 March, but his death meant the committee announced his award on 10 March. Otto himself had been told earlier that he had won the prize by the executive director of the Pritzker Prize, Martha Thorne. He was reported to have said: »I have never done anything to gain this prize. Prize winning is not the goal of my life. I try to help poor people, but what shall I say here – I am very happy.«

Anne-Catrin Schultz Carlo Scarpa – Layers

152 pp. with 344 illus., 233 x 284.5 mm, hard-cover, English ISBN 978-3-930698-14-1 Euro 59.00, £ 39.90, US$ 69.00

In recent decades, Carlo Scarpa's relevance has been steadily on the rise. Strategies of adaptive reuse and adjustments to existing fabric are consistent with a growing agenda of sustainability and resourcefulness. At a time when architects have to develop aesthetic systems following an integrative approach, treating existing urban and built context as a narrative to continue, Scarpa's oeuvre remains a source of inspiration. Scarpa's use of architectural layering analysed and explained in this book could serve as a contemporary strategy that is nonhierarchical and free of stylistic idioms.

Buildings such as the Castelvecchio in Verona show that architecture is capable of communicating its own history, that it carries meaning while developing a contemporary dynamic of its own. Scarpa's layered architecture makes time-related sedimentation of material and content readable. It is especially at points of transition and joints that layering becomes an element that elucidates the tectonic and spatial qualities of the building.

In this book Anne-Catrin Schultz presents her research related to the phenomenon of layering in Scarpa's architecture. Layering describes the physical composition of built layers defining space while including the presence of cultural references and associations.

Scarpa's work is an embodiment of multidimensional layering and a focal point for architectural movements of this time that share a similar approach. In most buildings, the principle of layering may be regarded as something that is part of the nature of construction. Functional conditions call for separate planes, elements or »layers«, some of which provide the structure while others take care of the protection from weather and climate. However, architectural layering goes beyond the mere fulfillment of technical requirements – the principle of layering may be used as formative method that allows elements of different origins to be combined into a nonhierarchical whole. Layering is complex and creates references to our world at large.

The first part of the book examines Scarpa's intellectual roots and puts them in perspective with relevant examples of architecture theory, such as Gottfried Semper's theory of clothing. The second part displays an analysis of three projects, the Castelvecchio and the Banca Popolare in Verona and the Querini Foundation in Venice.

Anne-Catrin Schultz studied architecture in Stuttgart and Florence. Following postdoctoral research at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, she practiced for several years at Turnbull Griffin Haesloop and Skidmore Owings & Merrill in Francisco. She has taught at the University of California in Berkeley, the California College of the Arts and the San Francisco City College in San Francisco. In 2013, she joined the faculty at Wentworth Institute of Technology to teach architecture history and theory.

Play-acting but above all the opera have only seemingly little to do with our everyday life. In fact opera is a very artificial work of art in which reality is nevertheless present, but condensed in such a way that it touches us throughout the ages. In experiencing opera performances, we thus become companions of the bard Orpheus in Monteverdi's opera L'Orfeo, who mourns the death of his beloved nymph Eurydice with his laments. We transform ourselves into sympathetic and compassionate brothers and sisters of Orpheus, Wozzeck, Tosca, Tristan, Isolde or Jenufa and are thus directly referred to the perils – and also pleasures – in our own lives.

In order to make the visual and sound dimensions of an opera tangible for the audience, a close interaction of dramaturges, actors, singers, dancers, directors, stage designers and technicians is necessary. What role do stage designers play in this? Don't some performances owe their success primarily to the work of the set designer?

The stage settings created by Hans Dieter Schaal, who has worked on almost all German stages, but also in many important international theatre venues, including Vienna, Salzburg, Zurich, Brussels, Paris, Moscow and San Francisco, have, over and over again, such a lasting effect due to their visual power that they remain in the memory of the audience for a long time.

The first volume on Hans Dieter Schaal's stage settings covered the years 1982 to 2000, and with this book another volume is now being published dedicated to the works from 2001 to 2022. The book is captivating not only because of its abundance of mostly large-format photographs and many design drawings, but also because of the detailed texts written by Schaal himself, which reveal how intensively the artist deals with the respective work. As a result he invents images that often trigger a completely new perspective on the works.

Hans Dieter Schaal, born in Ulm in 1943, is an architect, landscape designer, stage designer, exhibition designer and artist. His works, the majority of which have been published by Edition Axel Menges, have found an audience far beyond his home country. The author lives and works near Biberach an der Riß.

Wolfgang Willaschek studied music-theatre directing at the Hochschule für Musik und Theater Hamburg. His work as a production dramaturg includes jobs at opera houses and festivals in Munich, Frankfurt, Zurich, Salzburg, London, St. Petersburg and San Francisco. Since 2007 he has been professor for the dramaturgy of audiovisual media at HAW Hamburg (Hochschule für Angewandte Wissenschaften Hamburg).

»In his note to the edition of Neue Landschaftsarchitektur / New Landscape Architecture published 1994 in England as Landscape as Inspiration, Geoffrey Jellicoe compares my drawing considerations with the works of Paul Klee. What at first sounds a bit highfalutin is correct insofar as I do not move exclusively in the banal everyday and functional space in everything I draw, design and realize, but always reflect second and third surrealities as well. »Art does not reproduce the visible, but makes visible«, how Paul Klee formulated the process. Every viewer and reader could rightly ask the question: What do such expressions of art have to do with every-day architecture?

I think: a great deal. And that is because all architectural problems and their solutions are multi-layered. Just like pure works of art. Every building summarizes and redefines its architectural, urban, village and landscape surroundings. Intentionally or unintentionally, exaggerated or restrained, each building can look like a meteorite or bomb strike, an inconspicuous remark or a beautification attack.

I am interested in the past, the present and the future of an urban or landscape site. My view wants to integrate archaeological working methods just as much as functional fulfilments and imaginative-surreal, sometimes utopian efflorescence. I would never go so far as to formulate: Architecture is the necessary, and art is the unnecessary.

Of course, every artist-architect who embarks on this complicated-complex path will have difficulties with the banal, seemingly superficial everyday reality in nature, the landscape and the city. It is therefore not surprising that I have only been able to realize a few architectural and visual productions and that, in the course of the last decades, I have been increasingly pushed into the areas of stage design and other design areas.

At the moment, thanks to the ecological movement, hardly anyone is interested in the connection between art and architecture. More important are sustainability and zero-energy houses in which the windows can hardly be opened.

Could it be that building culture, indeed the whole of culture, will soon sink into green primeval forests and huge wetland biotopes? Or will foreign, warlike peoples destroy or occupy our cities and landscapes and cultivate them anew?«

Hans Dieter Schaal about his work.

Hans Dieter Schaal. Festung Königstein. Ausstellungsdesign / Exhibition Design

With texts by Hans Dieter Schaal and Angelika Taube and photographs by Peter Mauksch, Bernd Walther and others. 84 pp. with 100 illus., 280 x 300 mm, hard-cover, German/English
ISBN 978-3-86905-024-9
Euro 39.00, £ 36.00, US$ 48.00

Königstein Fortress, located not far from Dresden on a rocky plateau high above the Elbe River, is considered one of the most interesting and best preserved fortifications in Europe. It has a long eventful history dating back to the Bronze Age.

Königstein was first mentioned in documents in 1241. It was not until the end of the 16th century that the former castle began to be expanded into a fortress, which was then constantly adapted to new conditions. However, it was spared from warlike destruction over all the centuries. Instead, it was sometimes used as a prison camp in times of war, for example during the Franco-Prussian War of 1870/71 and for the last time during the Second World War. In 1949, the then GDR set up a youth workshop in the fortress based on the teachings of Soviet pedagogue Anton Semyonovich Makarenko. In 1955, the GDR's Ministry of Culture finally converted Königstein into a museum and since 1991, now owned by the Free State of Saxony, it has undergone extensive structural renovation.

The managing director of Festung Königstein gGmbH, Angelika Taube, became aware of Hans Dieter Schaal as early as 1997, and in the following years she established an intensive collaboration with him, which has now resulted in six permanent and twelve temporary exhibitions. They illustrate the multifaceted history of the fortress in a way that clearly stands out from pure documentation and always creates something new and original from the factually given.

This book presents these exhibitions in large-format colour illustrations. In addition, it contains descriptions and comments by Schaal that clarify the history of the exhibitions and also give the reader insights into the creative processes.

Hans Dieter Schaal, born in Ulm in 1943, architect, stage designer, exhibition and landscape planner, makes the complexity of reality visible through his analytically differentiated stagings and brings its background into the field of vision of the attentive viewer. His works, the majority of which have been published by Edition Axel Menges, have since found an audience far beyond the borders of his native country. The author lives and works near Biberach an der Riß.

Fundación César Manrique, Lanzarote

With an introduction by Simón Marchán Fiz and photographs by Pedro Martínez de Albornoz. 60 pp. with 52 illus. in b&w and colour, 280 x 300 mm, hard-cover, German/English/Spanish ISBN 978-3-930698-16-5 Euro 36.00, £ 24.00, US$ 44.50

Over the last decade the island of Lanzarote has become one of the favourite tourism destinations in the Canary Islands. However, our interest is more one of artistic than of touristic discovery, and this would be virtually unthinkable without the work of an artist who fell in love with this wonderful paradise. We refer to César Manrique (1919–1992), who was able to see and reveal to us the unique beauties arising out of the happy marriage of the four elements believed by the Greeks to form the whole of creation: air, earth, fire and water.

In fact, after returning to his island in 1968 after a period spent in New York, Manrique dedicated himself passionately to realising his utopia, to renew Lanzarote out of his own sources. Among Manrique's best known works on Lanzarote are the Casa Museo del Campesino, the Jameos del Agua, the Mirador del Río, the Cactus Garden and his own house in the Taro de Tahíche.

Manrique's house in Taro de Tahíche, which nowadays houses the César Manrique Foundation, can be considered as a »work in progress« as it was built over a period of almost 25 years and was still not completed upon the artist's death. Arising out of the five interconnected volcanic bubbles of the underground storey, it has become a metaphor for the amorous meeting of man with Mother Earth, the latter being understood, to use Bruno Taut's expression, as »a fine home for living«. The spaces on the upper floor can be virtually mistaken for the white cubic buildings dispersed throughout the island. But when we cross their thresholds, we have the unique feeling that here something was created which is really new. In fact, Manrique – enemy in equal measure of the »pastiche« of regionalism and the off-key International Style blind to differentiation – sifted the vernacular with certain modern filters such as Frank Lloyd Wright, Mies van der Rohe or Le Corbusier, and at the same time he gave it such a specific stamp that the final result became indigenous and unmistakable.

Simón Marchán Fiz is professor of aesthetics in Madrid. Like Marchán Fiz, Pedro Martínez de Albornoz lives in Madrid. The photographs shown in this book are the best photographic interpretation of one of Manrique's work up to now.

Frank Lloyd Wright Home and Studio, Oak Park

With an introduction by Elaine Harrington and photographs by Jon Miller/Hedrich-Blessing. 56 pp. with 69 illus., 280 x 300 mm, hard-cover, English ISBN 978-3-930698-23-3 Euro 36.00, £ 29.90, US $ 39.90

It was in his home in Oak Park that Frank Lloyd Wright made his first contributions to the Modern Movement. In 1889 he designed the first part of the house, in 1895 he added to it for his wife, Catherine, and their family, and in 1898 for his architectural practice. The entire building was a learning laboratory of modern architecture. While not a Prairie School house, it led to the development of the Prairie School. Wright's constant changes to this complex paralleled the evolution of his early architectural work and career. There, with his young assistants, he rethought the plan, spaces, materials, proportions and lines of American residential architecture, creating a revolution on the Prairie. His home and studio provided the architectural environment in which to experiment with his ideas in three dimensions. The house featured contemporary art work, oriental tribal rugs and Japanese decorative arts chosen by Wright and his wife. The studio was decorated with classical plaster sculpture, Teco ceramics and selections from Wright's large collection of Japanese prints. Wright completed the interiors, toned in nature's hues, with furniture and built-in furnishings of his own design, harmonious to the whole.

The colour photographs of Jon Miller of Hedrich-Blessing show a glimpse into Wright's first haven, where he challenged prevailing notions about the country's architecture, and which he then left, to continue as one of America's most significant architects. Included in the book is a portfolio of historic black and white photographs of the building, a number of them taken by Wright himself.

Elaine M. Holzschuh Harrington has been the Curator of the Glessner House (Opus 7: Henry Hobson Richardson, J. J. Glessner House, Chicago) and the Curator of the Frank Lloyd Wright Home and Studio. She has written and lectured extensively about both. Hedrich-Blessing, Chicago's oldest and foremost architectural photography firm, was founded in 1929. From its beginning, the firm has been noted for portraying the most dramatic rendition of a building within the bounds of high architectural accuracy. The firm created a working atmosphere that encouraged the firm's photographers to perform at their best, an atmosphere that continued until 2017 when the firm finally closed its doors.

Himeji Castle

With an introduction by Irmtraud Schaarschmidt-Richter and photographs by Mo Nishikawa. 52 pp. with 38 illus., 280 x 300 mm, hard-cover, German/English ISBN 978-3-86905-026-3 Euro 36.00, £ 29.90, US $ 39.90

Spread over a hill that climbs up from the plain, Himeji Castle with its white walls shimmering in the sunlight like the feathers of a fantastic bird seems to be rising into the blue sky like a great heron. This impression has given it the name »Castle of the White Heron«. The castle, which has nothing martial about it, on the contrary, it is extraordinarily elegant, is undoubtedly one of Japan's most impressive fortresses. It was built between 1601 and 1609, when the period of war was almost over and was used primarily for administration and residence, with defence as a secondary role. Thus its aesthetic impact was as important when it was built as its actual purpose as a fortification.

The main building in the castle is the Tenshu or Tenshu-kaku in the northern part of the complex, a wooden structure about 46 m high. Its complicated intermediate roofs make it look more like a skyscraper than a tower.

Himeji Castle represents an architectural type that probably does not occur in other areas of the world. Large parts of the building were classified as »Kokuho State Treasure« as early as 1951 and others as »Important Cultural Property«. The building was placed on the World Cultural Heritage list in 1993.

Art historian Irmtraud Schaarschmidt-Richter specialised in classical and modern Japanese art and architecture at an early stage, as is shown by numerous publications. Her book on the Japanese garden has long been a standard work. Most recently she was involved in publications on architects Kazuo Shinohara and Toyo Ito. Photographer Mo Nishikawa, a pupil of Ken Domon, one of the most important photographers of the 20th century, sees his work as a spiritual and intellectual contemplation of art. His photographs of the Katsura Palace, the Himeji Castle and the Ise Shrine are among the great masterpieces of contemporary photography.

Frank O. Gehry, Guggenheim Bilbao Museum

With an introduction by Kurt W. Forster and photographs by Ralph Richter. 56 pp. with 65 illus., 280 x 300 mm, hard-cover, English ISBN 978-3-930698-32-5 Euro 36.00, £ 29.90, US $ 39.90

There is no doubt at all that Gehry's Guggenheim Museum in Bilbao is one of the most spectacular buildings of recent years. As the central element in Bilbao's comprehensive urban renewal programme the building raised high expectations from the outset. Its site between river, railway, bridge and new town makes it a symbol of the Basque metropolis that can be seen from a considerable distance. It is both the heart of the city and a testbed for the arts, representing both public presence and artistic change.

The process by which it was created demonstrates the most recent advances in computer-aided design and in material manufacture. For a long time design and building were broken down into a large number of individual components. Gehry's museum unifies this process and is thus able to create fluent links between architectural detail and urban impact.

But the innovations do not stop at technology, they also extend to the way in which the interior spaces are shaped. These are extremely varied in form, as the museum is not so much designed to house a permanent exhibition of the collection, but to enable artists to create installations. In contrast with the usual neutral gallery spaces Gehry offers a whole variety of stages for artistic presentation. His artist friends have risen to the challenge of his architecture and are experimenting very successfully with this new way of showing their work to the public.

Kurt W. Forster studied art history, literature and archaeology at the universities in Berlin, Munich and Zurich, rounding out his studies in Florence and London. He taught at Yale University (1960–67), Stanford University (1967–82) and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (1982–84). He was the first director of the newly established Getty Center for the History of Art and the Humanities in Santa Monica (1984–92), where he inaugurated a broadly based programme of research and publications. After that he taught at the Eidgenössische Technische Hochschule in Zurich (1992–99). Before achieving his most recent position as director of the Accademia di Architettura in Mendrisio he was director of the Canadian Centre for Architecture in Montreal (1999–2001). Ralph Richter studied at the Fachhochschule in Dortmund. He rapidly made a name for himself as an architectural photographer. He has photographed buildings by Santiago Calatrava, Coop Himmelblau, Norman Foster, Volker Gienke, Uwe Kiessler and Alessandro Mendini. He also took the photographs for Opus 21: Norman Foster, Commerzbank, Frankfurt am Main.

Opus 65
Le Corbusier, Unité d'habitation, Marseille

With texts by Alban Janson and Carsten Krohn and photographs by Anja Grunwald. 80 pp. with 80 illus., 280 x 300 mm, hard-cover, German / English ISBN 978-3-932565-65-6 Euro 39.00, £ 36.00, US $ 48.00

If there is one building by Le Corbusier that represents a synthesis of his basic concepts it is certainly the Unité d'habitation built in Marseille in 1946–52. This built manifesto does not simply put forward a social model as a utopia, but also the unity of architecture and town planning. It is one of the most significant buildings there has even been, but it also triggered a great deal of controversy. The story of the response to it has been recorded in order to investigate why this extremely ambitious project in particular should have caused such a conflict between intention and effect.

The Unité d'habitation in Marseille is now very popular with the people who live in it as a building. Despite all the criticism, it obviously still offers functional advantages that make it easier for individuals and the community to live together. The enormous sculptural force and the characteristic interplay of light and colour shown in the photographs make the building into a »personality« that can be identified with.

As well as this, the building also offers something special in terms of concrete spatial experience. In the age of a superficial »adventure society« it claims the intensity of an everyday experience that is both casual and at the same time complex, embracing all the senses. This extends from the reception in the imposing foyer to the »theatre« of figures on the roof terrace in the light of the landscape, from the inverted urban scenery of the promenade publique to twilight seclusion in the silent residential streets. And it includes the flats themselves, which open up expansively to draw in the sea and mountain mood. Le Corbusier used his architectural resources atmospherically and scenically to give the Unité d'habitation a succinct coherence that also forms the basis for individual lives within its rooms and spaces. Precise observation and description reveal the mechanisms of these effects.

All three authors are qualified architects. Until his retirement Alban Janson was professor of the fundamentals of architecture at the Karlsruher Institut für Technology, Carsten Krohn lives and works as an author in Berlin, and Anja Grunwald is professor of architectural photography and typography at the Hochschule Karlsruhe – Technik und Wirtschaft.

Carlo Scarpa, Museo di Castelvecchio, Verona

With texts by Alba Di Lieto, Paola Marini and Valeria Carullo and photographs by Richard Bryant. 52 pp. with 43 illus., 280 x 300 mm, hard-cover, Italian / English ISBN 978-3-932565-81-6 Euro 36.00, £ 29.90, US $ 39.90

During the 1960s Italy's museum sector witnessed a fertile period of renewal. A generation of architects, working in partnership with the directors of museums, set about transforming into exhibition spaces a number of ancient monumental complexes located in the historic centres of some of the most important Italian cities. Among these was the brilliant and solitary Venetian architect Carlo Scarpa who revitalised the discipline of museography by sagaciously combining it with restoration. His lucid intervention at Verona's Museo di Castelvecchio is emblematic of this approach: the medieval castle, the museum of ancient art and modern architecture all harmoniously coexisting in a monument located at the heart of a city designated a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

The far-sighted choice of Scarpa was owed to the then director of the museum, Licisco Magagnato, who tenaciously argued the case for the appointment of an architect specialising in this field to work on the city's principal museum of ancient art.

In his work on the Castelvecchio, carried out at a significant point in his career, Scarpa attained a remarkable balance between various aesthetic elements that is particularly evident in the sculpture gallery, where the renovations harmonize with the power of the 14th-century Veronese works exhibited in this section of the museum. One of the most striking details – extraordinarily rich in historical and symbolic significance – is the location of the equestrian statue of Cangrande I della Scala, an exceptional medieval sculpture of the famous Lord of Verona. For the presentation of this work – a symbol of the city and its museum – the architect conceived a backdrop of great poetry, drawing the visitor's attention to its historical stratifications and simultaneously creating an exemplary essay in modern architecture.

The book is introduced with a text by Alba Di Lieto, the architect of Verona's art museums, a scholar of Scarpa's drawings and the author of monographs on his work. She describes the architect's renovation and locates it in the context of Italy's architectural panorama.

The essay is followed by a brief history of the castle by Paola Marini, who was the director of Verona's art museums and monuments for 22 years. In 2015 she has taken on a new role as director of the Gallerie dell'Accademia in Venice.

Valeria Carullo, curator of the The Robert Elwall Photographs Collection in the RIBA British Architectural Library, writes about her experience assisting Bryant when he photographed the castle.

Richard Bryant is one of the best-known architectural photographers, working all over the world. He and Héléne Binet are the only photographers to have been awarded a RIBA Honorary Fellowship of the Royal Institute of British Architects.

SSP AG, RWTH Aachen, Fakultät für Maschinenwesen

With an essay by Frank R. Werner and photographs by Jörg Hempel. 52 pp. with 50 illus., 280 x 300 mm, hard-cover, German/English ISBN 978-3-932565-86-1 Euro 36.00, £ 29.90, US$ 39.90

From the 1960s to the 1980s, new university buildings were regarded as real showcase projects in Germany. With their help, it was hoped to catch up with the international building scene again after the severe destruction of the Second World War. However, deficiencies in the technical execution and also in the subsequent building maintenance often led to the fact that in the course of the years serious structural problems appeared more and more frequently in the former showcase projects, which in some cases even led to the demolition of former demonstrative projects.

This Opus volume presents such an aging university ensemble on the old campus of the RWTH Aachen, which could not only be saved, but also embodies a renaissance of high-quality urban development and sustainable architecture. This balancing act is thanks to the architects and engineers of the renowned SSP AG from Bochum.

First of all, they used the building task to significantly reorganise the old campus area in terms of urban development and to uncover lost urban references. In a next step, they demolished a dilapidated multi-storey car park and built the new technical centre, the »Technikum« on its foundations. In doing so, they followed the highest construction standards and sustainability strategies down to the smallest detail.

However, the architects were able to retain the neighbouring, defective high-rise building of the so-called »Sammelbau« of the Faculty of Mechanical Engineering. They stripped the high-rise down to its bare supporting structure and then refurbished it to the highest technical and ecological standards, just like the Technikum.

In times when terms such as sustainability or building ecology are being used in an almost inflationary manner, the project presented here is a real model, because it not only speaks of high standards, but has in fact implemented the highest standards – and because it has given the concept of »re-use«, i. e. the recycling of old, dilapidated building substance, a sensuously appealing structural form and a long-term new utility.

Frank R. Werner was professor of history and architectural theory at the Staatliche Akademie der Bildenden Künste Stuttgart from 1990 until 1994 and director of the Institut für Architekturgeschichte und Architekturtheorie at the Bergische Universität in Wuppertal from 1993 until his retirement in 2012. He studied painting at the Kunsthochschule Mainz and architecture and history of architecture at the Technische Hochschule Hannover and at the Universität Stuttgart. Jörg Hempel is a freelance architectural photographer and lives in Aachen. Since 2007 he has taught architectural photography at the Fachhochschule Bochum, since 2015 also at the Fachhochschule Aachen and since 2019 at the Technische Hochschule Köln.

Opus 87
Egon Eiermann, Haus Eiermann, Baden-Baden

With an essay by Gerhard Kabierske and photographs by Horstheinz Neuendorff. 60 pp. with 40 illus., 280 x 300 mm, hard-cover, German/English ISBN 978-3-932565-87-8 Euro 36.00, £ 29.90, US$ 39.90

Building a residential house, Egon Eiermann often commented, was a particularly demanding task for him. Even though he had made a name for himself in the 1930s with his Berlin single-family homes, Eiermann later on found it difficult to accept commissions for this building type when, during the period of the »economic miracle«, he was approached by numerous people interested to get a design by him. Only the representative Hardenberg House in Baden-Baden satisfied him, but above all his own house, which he also built in Baden-Baden in 1959–62.

This house in particular, built after his success with the German Pavilion at the 1958 Brussels World's Fair, the Berlin Gedächtniskirche and the German Embassy in Washington, was to become one of the main works of his post-war creative output. As a builder in his own right, he was able here to uncompromisingly realise his ideal image of living for himself and his family.

Eiermann himself tried to explain the house, which only crystallised in a longer planning genesis, primarily from the functional side: main house and annexe, the latter for garage, studio and guest apartment, the elongated main house in bulkhead construction under a flat sloping roof. In fact, the house is convincing in its sophisticated functionality. But it does not stop there. The complex group of buildings on a steep hillside site with its stage-like terraces, the interplay of views from the inside to the outside and, at night, also from the outside to the inside, is an extremely artificial structure even from its basic disposition. The Eiermann-typical façade, with its exterior walkway and white linkage as well as the roof of corrugated Eternit provide a ponderous contrast. Echoes of traditional Japanese houses and gardens, but above all the adoption of motifs from the construction of sailing ships give this architect's house an unmistakable character. Since 2020, it has had new owners, who commissioned the Stuttgart architects now here (Henning Volpp and Karl Amann) to carry out a comprehensive restoration in keeping with the preservation order.

Eiermann's estate, which is kept at the saai, the Archive for Architecture and Engineering at the Karlsruhe Institute of Technology (KIT), provided the historical drawings and photographs for this volume. The photographs were taken by Horstheinz Neuendorff, who was on friendly terms with the architect. Since the early 1960s, Neuendorff had been commissioned by Eiermann to capture his buildings in black-and-white photographs of high artistic demands. Gerhard Kabierske is an art historian specialising in architectural history and monument preservation. From 1993 to 2020 he worked at the saai where he was responsible, among other things, for the Eiermann archive.

Vom segensreichen Wirken der Fehler und anderem. Vier Essays zur Architektur

The present volume brings together four smaller essayistic texts written over a period of two decades and whose different themes deal with rather remote areas of architecture. Steine zu Wörtern examines the peculiar, singular appearance of architecture in the literary work of Hans Henny Jahnn, a major German author of the 20th century. Vom segensreichen Wirken der Fehler, a grotesque counter-draft to the widespread view that the development of style is due to nothing more than noble striving, attempts to trace the influences of mistakes and misunderstandings, calamities whose effects on architecture, although concealed, are hardly to be underestimated. A different facet of the concealed is treated in the study of a remote field of the Baroque, Die verschwiegene venustas, dealing with the Pietist architecture of the Franckesche Stiftungen in Halle which, despite its simplicity of appearance, reveals an unexpected manifestation of the most elaborate Baroque rhetoric. Finally, Architektur als Zeitreise deals with the building of the Chamber of Commerce in Mantua, erected in 1913 by Aldo Andreani, whose somewhat outré combination of historical set pieces, when carefully considered, reveals a surprisingly precise programme and concept, a historical-critical eclecticism at the crossroads of the emerging modernism. A lecture attached in the appendix takes a closer look at the »architectonic«, whose determination as an inherent principle of architecture the four texts tentatively operate from the periphery of the field to grasp.

Fritz Barth, born in 1958, studied architecture at the Universität Stuttgart and the ETH Zürich. He runs an architectural offices in Fellbach and Berlin, holds the honorary professorship for building design at the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar and is the author of a number of books dealing with architecture and its environment, including a study on the iconography of 16th century Italian gardens (Die Villa Lante in Bagnaia, Edition Axel Menges 2001), a monograph on Johann Blasius Santini-Aichel, an architect associated with Bohemian Radical Baroque (Santini. Ein Baumeister des Barock in Böhmen, 2004), a study of early fortress construction in Italy (Zeichen des Wehrhaften. Festungsbauten von Francesco di Giorgio Martini/Martial Signifiers. Fortress Complexes by Francesco di Giorgio Martini, Edition Axel Menges 2011) as well as a detailed study of the Melnikov House in Moscow, a major work of early 20th century architecture (Konstantin Melnikov und sein Haus/Konstantin Melnikov and his House, Edition Axel Menges 2015).

Architects usually try to create »finished« buildings, i. e. coherent works of architecture for eternity. But does this claim stand up to reality? Should that be the claim at all? After all, it cannot be ruled out that the building will change after completion. Inspired by references from architectural history, art and anthropology, Florian Kaiser and Guobin Shen developed various theses at the beginning of their practice and tested them on the basis of its own projects. Central to this is the question of how buildings change in their lifespan due to external influences and what this change means for permanence in architecture and for the idea of space.

In earlier times, it was common practice to build on existing structures. Thus, in most buildings that have survived for several centuries, countless layers of time overlap. This can be seen particularly clearly in the additions and conversions of churches for example. Due to new framework conditions and requirements for use, buildings were always pragmatically developed further in the currently valid architectural style. Often, only experts are able to distinguish between the different time periods. Only a few buildings are considered so outstanding by society that they are conserved and musealised in a fixed time layer. However, such conservation is rather unnatural and can only be justified in exceptional cases. In this book, therefore, promising strategies are to be pointed out as to how »unfinished« houses, with rooms lacking special qualities, can be further built and adapted to the present framework conditions.

For Atelier Kaiser Shen, a good structure means developing a future-proof spatial idea, and this cannot be reduced to the supporting structure. When building further, it should be possible to build on this architectural-spatial idea. Since a conversion can even destroy it in extreme cases, it is important to create a potential that is recognised and taken up by those who continue to build. Ideally, the building should have such a strong spatial idea that it can survive future renovations and still be viable.

Stuttgart-based Atelier Kaiser Shen was founded in 2017 by Florian Kaiser and Guobin Shen and works on projects of various scales. Their work has been awarded various prizes, including the Hugo-Häring-Auszeichnung 2020 and a recognition at the BDA-Architekturpreis max 40 for young architects. Parallel to their work in the studio, Florian Kaiser and Guobin Shen taught at the University of Stuttgart from 2014 to 2021.

The dream of owning a home in the countryside has led to cities expanding more and more, growing together and destroying unspoiled nature. In addition, however, the need for affordable and attractive living space in cities is also increasing. Proximity to work and good infrastructure are clear advantages of city life. The »Penthouses for all« concept focuses on people's individual living wishes. It shows that sophisticated architecture can be affordable for all and is also possible in cities in the course of densification. The new living space for all is developed by building on flat roofs, which are plentiful in urban areas.

Unfortunately, in the past the possibilities of targeted development of roofs remained largely unrecognised, especially in the newly built districts. So far, flat roofs here have mostly only been planted or used for energy generation. Here and there they are also built on later, but as a rule they remain unused for residential purposes. The situation is very different in many southern countries. There, it is a matter of course to use flat roofs for living and to include them in the planning right from the start.

The book gives an insight into the inexhaustible possibilities of living on roofs. Numerous examples show that the dream of a home in the countryside can also be realised in the city. Not only small, low-cost roof houses are possible. With special »construction kits«, larger units can also be put together; alternative forms of living can be thought of and realised as well; nothing remains utopian. Ultimately, the aim is to make living in cities more attractive again in order to prevent urban sprawl and destruction of nature, and to give people back a home and identity even in the city.

However, new building laws and development plans must create the prerequisites for this. So far, subsequent building on roofs is often prevented by building laws or rejected for aesthetic reasons. Further construction on roof areas is paralysed by the requirement to adapt to the existing building. Thus, only roof superstructures are created that are hardly recognisable as such or that take up the given monotonous design elements in order to adapt to the existing buildings.

Gerald Marx studied architecture at the Gesamthochschule Kassel. After graduating, he gained two years of professional experience in the offices of Hansgeorg Beckert and Gilbert Becker in Frankfurt and Fritz Novotny and Arthur Mähner in Offenbach am Main. After winning competitions, he set up his own architectural practice in Mühlheim am Main in 1976, which (from 1994 in Berlin) has so far realised 52 projects. In 1981/82, Marx was a scholarship holder at the Villa Massimo in Rome.

»If someone asked me: what is the film about, I would have to say: It is really about the essence of human life! I find it incredibly beautiful! It is really a moving experience ... I think it is obviously art built and master full ...« (Prof. Howard Davis, University of Oregon, on Portugali's film And the alley she whitewashed in light blue.)

At a time of existential threat to the physical and human environment we live in, architect and film maker Nili Portugali takes the readers through a poetic essay and a spectacular photo gallery, extracted from her awarded new film, into a deeply intimate journey of memories in the Galilean holy »Kabbala« city of Tsefat.

A childhood journey that unfolds gradually from her present holistic / Buddhist / phenomenological point of view to a discovery of profound universal insights of what is the secret of all those timeless places endowed with beauty and soul where one feels »at home«? And what is that »one pure art of making« that creates them? At any culture at any place and at any time.

Nili Portugali unfolds the way in which her holistic-phenomenological approach to the arts as a whole and to architecture in particular generated her creative process in making her film. A process fundamentally different from the common production processes in the film industry. The book includes a free streaming access to watch the film.

Nili Portugali, a seventh generation descendant of a family living in the city of Tsefat, is a practicing architect, lecturer, researcher, author and film maker. Her work focuses on both practice and theory, closely connected to the holistic-phenomenological school of thought. Her first book The Act of Creation and the Spirit of a Place. A Holistic-Phenomenological Approach to Architecture was nominated for The RIBA International Book Award 2007: »There is no other book quite like this one, it really is singular and worthy of your close attention.« Her film is the third chapter in her creative trilogy following the buildings she designed and the books she wrote. She did post-graduate studies in architecture and Buddhism at the University of California in Berkeley and participated there in research with Christopher Alexander at the Center for Environmental Structure. She taught at the Bezalel Academy of Art and Design in Jerusalem and at the Technion – Israel Institute of Technology in Haifa.

Since beyond time, vibrations have been exploring the universe, hopping from star to star and forming light beings and crystals of light on our planet.

In rainbow lightnings they bubble, flame, flare, flash, weaving a web of light, condensing themselves, becoming space which inspires and into which one can enter. They become arcs of light, figurines, cubes, gurgling sky discs, cathedrals of light! Beauty is their goal. If their light were sound, what a sound of light-worlds!

Their journey takes them to Mongolia, Belize, Rome, Kathmandu, Guilin, Norway and Japan. The lightnings and light crystals frozen for a moment in the illustrations let their vibrations travel around the earth and in space.

Coming from space, the wandering light lingers in every place it visits, wandering around it and leaving behind its gift of light. It transcends boundaries, falls in love, is angry, shows future and laughs. It visits places of humiliation, powerlessness and hopelessness, gives home, courage and protection there.

It tries to understand every place it visits and responds to it in different guises: as a shimmering cube, a folded labyrinth of light, a pulsating light labyrinth, pulsating vibration in rainbow colours, as diamond light hovering above the horizon, humming the music of the night.

At the end of its wanderings around the earth it moves on into space, but not before leaving behind its scent, like the scent of time, scent of time and its omnipresence.

Wolfgang Rang, who works as an architect in Frankfurt am Main, has been dealing with the phenomenon of light in architecture and art for many years. Two books by Rang on this subject have already been published by Edition Axel Menges: Licht Raum / Light Space (2014) and Stadt Licht / City Light (2017).

Real and Fake in Architecture – Close to the Original, Far from Authenticity?
 With contributions by Tom van Arman, Dan Hiesel, Nicole Lambrou, Christina Lanzl, Eric Lum, Jennifer Lee Michaliszyn, Anne-Catrin Schultz, Karen Seong, Ingrid Strong, Kemo Usto and Justin Vigilanti. 240 pp. with 300 illus., 233 x 284.5 mm, hard-cover, English ISBN 978-3-86905-018-8 Euro 69.00, £ 59.90, US $ 78.00

The condition of »fake« and »real« in architecture is rarely publicly discussed nor has it encountered broad journalistic or scholarly attention. This book explores the realm of truth, authenticity and fakery in architecture, providing a timely collection of analytical essays and projects. Photographers, writers and architects share their understanding and speculations about a broad range of spaces and concepts – all searching for common ground between real and imagined, function and story.

The authors challenge our perception of »authenticity« through the examination of built and simulated environments, architectural fiction, theatrical illusions and mannerist trickery. They examine the notion that the principle of Sullivan's »form follows function« contains a paradox caused by the ambiguity and complexity of architectural expression. Buildings are perceived through an individual's personal experiences while also being interpreted along broader cultural values. The works shown reveal that under scrutiny, any built environment harbors both, reveals moments of truth, deception and ambiguity – all of it partially in the eye of the beholder.

The diverse contributions shed light on unexpected identities in architecture inviting critical thought about our built environment – analog and digital.

The goal of this publication goes beyond unmasking deception in architecture, it aims at unfolding time-lines and revealing the layered nature of people and places. The images and essays reveal our contemporary condition and let collective and individual narratives unfold, a range of truths in themselves. Expanding from the discussion about truthful materiality and tectonics, this book provides an understanding of real, authentic and fake in urbanism and architecture.

Anne-Catrin Schultz studied architecture in Stuttgart and Florence. Following post-doctoral research at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Boston, she worked for several years with Turnbull Griffin Haesloop and Skidmore, Owings & Merrill in San Francisco. While developing her own practice, she has taught at the University of California in Berkeley, the California College of the Arts and the Academy of Arts University in San Francisco. In 2013 she joined the Department of Architecture at Wentworth Institute of Technology in Boston.

New Military Museums
 128 pp. with 199 illus., 242 x 297,5 mm, hard-cover, English ISBN 978-3-86905-015-7 Euro 39.90, £ 35.90, US $ 46.90

Museum architecture has blossomed over the past few decades. Art museums lead the way in terms of new buildings by superstar architects such as Frank Gehry, Herzog and de Meuron, Jean Nouvel and Renzo Piano, among many more. Those facilities have received public and professional recognition through media attention and design awards. But other museum typologies exist, one such being for buildings that showcase military history and artifacts. All too often, one thinks of these as unsophisticated in their design and amateurish or antiquated in their exhibitions. Nowadays, nothing can be further from the truth. This volume examines more than thirty of them internationally that were constructed over the past two decades and more. The museums are featured in individual entries and lavish colour photography. Some were designed by internationally renowned architects such as Norman Foster, Daniel Libeskind, Skidmore Owings & Merrill and Robert A. M. Stern, but many more are the products of creative, accomplished designers. Beyond the architecture of these museums, exhibition and installation designs by noted specialist firms such as Ralph Appelbaum Associates, Kossmann.dejong and Gallagher & Associates, among others, have raised the bar in terms of immersive experiences for their visitors.

New military museums presented within the book are examined within the context of the history of war memorials and military museums, the latter being a less well researched subject. In the end, military museums relate back to antique sculptural commemorations of victorious campaigns and martial leaders, collections and displays of war trophies and the search to find useful architectural memorials, the latter especially so after the World Wars of the twentieth century.

Architectural historian John Zukowsky has an earned doctorate from Binghamton University. While curator of architecture for The Art Institute of Chicago (1978–2004), he organised a number of award-winning exhibitions accompanied by major books. After that, he held executive positions within military-related museums such as the Intrepid Sea, Air & Space Museum in New York and the Pritzker Military Museum & Library in Chicago. Since 2012 he has authored several books about architecture and design, including Why on Earth Would Anyone Build That (2015), Building Chicago: The Architectural Masterworks (2016) and Architecture Inside – Out: Understanding How Buildings Work (2018).
